W02 - Post Occupancy Evaluation: The Human Connection. How does the building work for the people?

Information gained from a properly conducted Post Occupancy Evaluation can be invaluable when applied to the next project for a hospital system or the next project of an architectural firm. However, it is often not conducted because it is done about a year after the project is completed and the stakeholders have lost interest in potential findings, there is no funding for an evaluation or anyone to actually do research and write the report. Join this in-depth workshop for a lively discussion moderated by experienced facilitators to explore how to introduce the intent of a POE at the start of the project and plan for it throughout the project phases. Participate in an interactive learning process to identify important elements to include and methods to gather the data.
